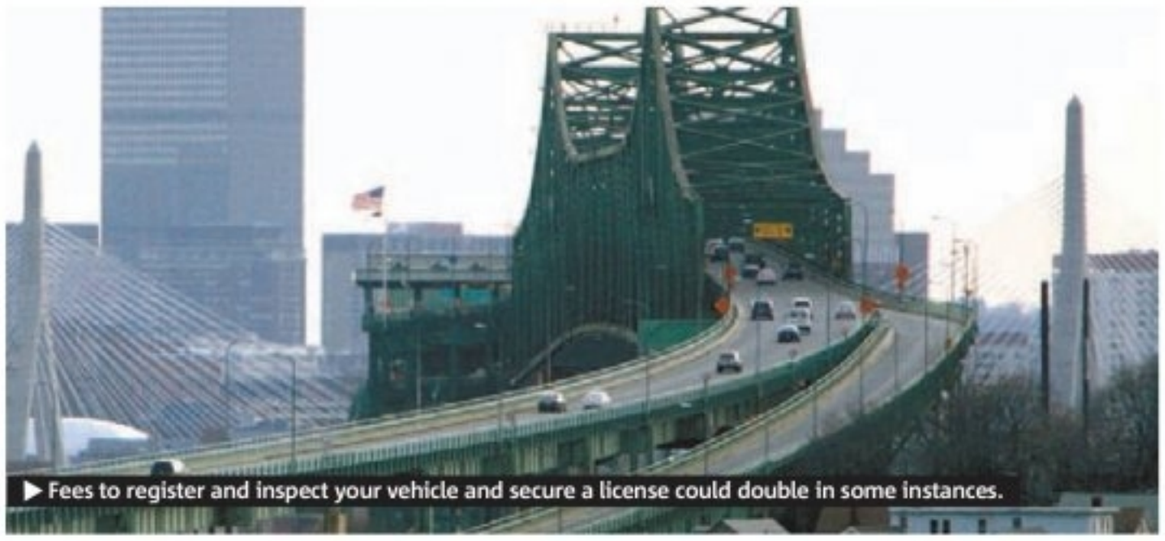
MassDot, governor unveil long-term plan to fix Massachusetts' transportation system

NICOLAUS CZARNECKI/METRO

▶ If new revenue is not found, MassDOT said as much as $40 million in service may be cut from the MBTA.



▶ Fees to register and inspect your vehicle and secure a license could double in some instances.

State officials yesterday laid out a long-term transportation overhaul that would cost $1.02 billion per year over the next decade.

The plan would not only fund the current system, but invest in new growth and end the practice of borrowing to pay for banal operations, like mowing the lawn along I-93.

However it also warns that without new revenue, the MBTA would need to cut service and "significantly increase fares" next year.

The report recommends possible revenue sources, like an increase in the gas tax, payroll tax, sales tax or income tax; a new green fee on vehicle registrations; a vehicle miles traveled tax; regular and modest fare, fee and toll increases; and new tolling mechanisms.

Gov. Deval Patrick called the report "a stark, clear-eyed, nonpartisan presentation of the facts," and said that if people are serious about improving the transportation system, they must be willing to make the necessary investments "not for the sake of transportation itself, but for the jobs and economic opportunity it creates."

MassDOT has said that if the 2014 budget deficits aren't addressed, it may increase registration fees by $53, vehicle inspection fees by $19 and license fees by $85. Tolls may also increase by 5 percent, as well as MBTA fares by 5 percent.

Boston projects

Some Boston projects in "The Way Forward":

- South Station Expansion: A $850 million design and construction of an expanded South Station will, within 10 years, accommodate future passenger rail growth and allow for additional rush hour service.
- Passenger rail service between Springfield and Boston would cost $362.4 million for route rehabilitation, a second track, widening bridges, upgrading signals, train equipment,constructing or rehabilitating stations. The project would also support future high-speed rail connection to New York City via Springfield.
- $20.8 million would provide seasonal service on weekends between Boston and Hyannis. Transit officials said service during the summer season will connect the Hub with a key tourist destination. METRO/MR

For the second consecutive year, Boston recorded the lowest number of fire deaths for large U.S. cities, the Boston Fire Department said yesterday. There was one fire death in the Hub in 2012, compared with 12 in Baltimore, 25 in Philadelphia and seven in Washington, D.C., Officals said a fully staffed fire department kept the number low. METRO

60 seconds with ...

▶ Patrick had a few words to share about the future of public transit.

GOV. DEVAL PATRICK

The governor discussed the state's new transportation plan with Metro yesterday:

Do you think people can be optimistic about the future of our transportation system?
"I think they can if they're willing to pay for it, and we're willing to show that there is a sensible and fair way to pay for it. We didn't get here overnight. We've been doing short term patches, plugs and gimmicks that put off the day of reckoning, and we can't put it off anymore."

The plan calls for "regular and modest" fare, fee and toll increases. It's no secret motorists and public transit customers seem fed up with fees as it is. Do you think they'll back more increases?
"I think they'll get behind them if we show it actually makes a difference in the service. ... We've gotten a lot of feedback from people saying, 'Man, I wish I could get a subway or a bus at 2 a.m. on a Saturday night after a time out with my pals.' People said they would be willing to pay for that, but in order for people to want that we've got to make sure the trains come on time, that they're properly lit, comfortable and safe. Not just a question of extending the schedule, it's about how we make the customer experience more positive."

The completion of the South Coast Rail Line to connect Boston to Fall River and New Bedford — why now?
"To me, the notion that the fourth- and fifth-largest cities in the Commonwealth would be cut off economically and socially seems unfair. When you consider the job and educational opportunities in the Greater Boston area, and the housing opportunities in the South Coast area, it's just crazy not to have these two linked."

When do you think we can see that happen?
"We've done a bunch already. We bought the rights of way a few years ago. ... If funding is OKed, it could get off the road soon." METRO/MR

Charges formally dropped against Aaron Swartz

The federal charges that could have put a 26-year-old Internet sharing activist behind bars for up to 35 years were formally dropped yesterday.

The office for U.S. Attorney for Massachusetts Carmen Ortiz filed a request for dismissal yesterday that dropped the charges against Aaron Swartz. Those charges included wire fraud and computer fraud.

The one-page dismissal cites Swartz's death as the reason for the case being dropped. Swartz hanged himself in his Brooklyn, N.Y., apartment on Friday.

A statement posted online by his family and partner partially blamed U.S. prosecutors and MIT for his death.

Swartz co-founded Demand Progress, a political action committee that campaigns on various online and privacy issues, and helped create the Internet program RSS.

His lawyer told the Globe that prosecutors had offered him a plea bargain of six months in jail but that he and Swartz rejected the offer. Swartz's trial was set for April.

Man allegedly racks up bill at strip club, fails to pay

BOSTON. A Somerville man was arrested after he allegedly failed to pay his bill at a Boston strip club.

Charles Dirac, 27, was arrested early yesterday, according to the Suffolk district attorney's office. He was charged with larceny but pleaded not guilty. He was released on his own recognizance. Dirac allegedly refused to pay his $770 bill that he racked up at Centerfolds.

A police officer working a detail at the club arrested Dirac after he became belligerent, authorities said.

DA: Anti-violence worker found with gun and drugs

Also allegedly had prostitute ◗ Agency says street worker fired from job after his arrest ◗ Organization remains confident in hiring process

A man working for a program that aims to reduce violence among young people and help youth in the city's neighborhoods was arrested after police reportedly found him with a gun, drugs and a prostitute.

Marcus Merritt, 35, of Dorchester, pleaded not guilty yesterday to the charges against him, according to the Suffolk district attorney's office. He was ordered held on $35,000 cash bail.

Police were responding to a call when they noticed a car parked on Auriga Street left running with its lights on just before 5 a.m. Saturday. When officers spoke to the woman in the car, she "made statements relative to prostitution," according to the district attorney's office.

During their investigation, police said they recovered an unregistered firearm from Merritt's waistband and cocaine from the car's center console.

Merritt had been a street worker with the StreetSafe program since 2009. StreetSafe is an initiative of the Boston Foundation and is separate from the city's street worker program that is overseen by the Boston Center for Youth & Families; however, the two programs do sometimes work in collaboration, officials said.

STREETSAFEBOSTON.ORG

The charges

Merritt pleaded not guilty to multiple charges yesterday:

- Unlawful possession of a gun
- Drug possession with intent to distribute
- Engaging in sex for a fee

The foundation's program is "dedicated to dramatically reducing violence in the city by deploying street workers to connect with underserved youth and then connect them with programs and services," according to the foundation.

After learning of the incident, Merritt was terminated, according to Ted McEnroe, foundation spokesman

Some of the street workers in the StreetSafe program have criminal backgrounds, but the foundation stood by their hiring practices yesterday.

"We really do undergo a very extensive training process and an extensive vetting process. We're confident that hiring people that know the streets of Boston, even if they've had some time on the other side of the legal system, has been and continues to be an effective way of preventing violence in Boston's neighborhoods," McEnroe said.

In a 2009 Boston Globe article, Merritt told the newspaper that he got caught up in the street life and shot a man he described as a drug dealer.

MassNightly: App breaks down state's best events each evening

Boston nightlife lovers Andrew Melchiorri and Chris Haddad have a pretty sweet gig — constantly perusing bars for fun things to do.

In August, the childhood friends launched MassNightly, a mobile app that lets users search for events and special offers — such as menu specials, music, trivia and karaoke — at bars and restaurants statewide.

"We bug the hell out of every bar in Massachusetts," said MassNightly CEO Melchiorri as he sipped on a beer at The Point on Hanover Street. "We genuinely believe that hand-to-hand is the best way to promote the app."

It is not uncommon for the 24-year-old to randomly approach customers there to promote the free app, sometimes coaxing them with a grab bag of goodies, like scratch tickets.

NICOLAUS CZARNECKI/METRO

Quoted

"When I'm out of town I'll Google 'GoodBar.' You just have to go to this app and you see exactly what's going on. You know where your night's going to be."

KEVIN CALLAHAN, MANAGER OF THE POINT

App origin

Massnightly.com was launched in 2010, but it received little traction, according to Melchiorri. "It's crazy having the same product on a mobile phone. Now, people actually use it — it's night and day. Everything is going mobile." The pair calls the app's statewide scope its selling point — almost 300 venues post specials and events.

"We'd be lying if we said we didn't get shut down every now and then," said Haddad, 22. "Surprisingly, women tend to be nicer. Maybe they're relieved that we're promoting and app, and for once they're not being hit on."

MassNightly has seen more than 3,000 downloads since August, but the entrepreneurs said they hope to up that number by tapping into an obvious market — college students.

"A 20-year-old turns 21 really fast," said Haddad. "It's definitely on our agenda to reach students. Boston is a college town. Every corner you turn, there's something to do. You can't go wrong."

Kevin Callahan, manager of The Point signed on to MassNightly shortly after its launch. The barkeeper said he uses the app not only to upload events at The Point, but also to find what's brewing on his night off.

"You just have to go to this app and you see exactly what's going on: karaoke, cheap beer, wings. Boom, you know where your night's going to be."

MASSACHUSETTS. The state's first slot parlor could open by the end of the year.

The state Gaming Commission said that it anticipates the first slots parlor license to be awarded by the end of this year. Officials also anticipate that the first resort casino license will be awarded before Feb. 26, 2014.

The deadline to submit an application and $400,000 fee for an expanded gaming license is today at 5 p.m.

As of yesterday MGM Springfield, Penn National Gaming, Inc., Hard Rock MA and Mohegan Sun are interested in competing in Western Massachusetts for one of three resort casino licenses. Plainridge Racecourse in Plainville is interested in competing for the state's single slots parlor license and Wynn, LLC and Caesars Entertainment/Suffolk Downs have cited interest in pursuing a resort-casino license in Greater Boston. Do Not Postpone Treatment

Varicose veins can start out as a seemingly small problem, but left untreated, can become much more serious. Complications of varicose veins may include ulcers. These may form on the skin near the affected veins, particularly near the ankles. They are caused by fluid build-up in the dysfunctional veins, and can be extremely painful.

Dysfunctional veins can also increase the risk of blood clots. Patients may experience a swelling in the leg, which may indicate a blood clot. Left untreated, these clots can travel through the bloodstream and lodge near the heart or lungs, causing potentially life-threatening health problems.

If you have already decided you'd like to receive vein treatments or would like to get a diagnosis, simply schedule an appointment with USA Vein Clinics today by calling

Obama warns on debt ceiling

President Barack Obama yesterday rejected any negotiation with Republicans over the most pressing U.S. fiscal issue, refusing to trade cuts in government spending in exchange for raising the borrowing limit.

"If the goal is to make sure that we are being responsible about our debt and our deficit — if that's the conversation we're having, I'm happy to have that conversation," Obama said. "What I will not do is to have that negotiation with a gun at the head of the American people," he told a news conference.

Republican leaders quickly reiterated their demand that increasing the debt limit must be accompanied by spending cuts.

With an agreement to prevent the so-called fiscal cliff of sharp spending cuts and tax increases barely two weeks old, Obama faces another fiscal showdown with congressional Republicans.

A trio of deadlines looms at the end of February: the need to raise the debt ceiling, automatic deep spending cuts temporarily put off in the fiscal cliff deal and the end of a stopgap government funding measure.

The United States could default on its debt if the borrowing limit is not increased. REUTERS

Delaware Attorney General Beau Biden joined leaders of the mid-Atlantic state yesterday in announcing new gun measures while his father, Democratic Vice President Joe Biden, was preparing national gun control proposals.

The announcements from the two states exposed a widening divide over gun control between states with Democratic majorities and large urban areas, particularly along the East Coast, and more rural states, many of which are represented by Republicans. REUTERS

Settlers confident Israel will lurch right in election

HEBRON, WEST BANK. Entrenched in what they view as their biblical heartland, the hardline Jewish settlers of Hebron look forward with delight to next week's Israeli election.

Opinion polls forecast Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, already at odds with the world over Jewish settlement in the occupied West Bank, will easily win a third term in office, with coalition partners who could push him further to the right.

The pro-settler Bayit Yehudi, a natural ally of Netanyahu's right-wing Likud party, is forecast to be the third-largest faction in parliament. Two Bayit Yehudi candidates — Hebron settlers — have a chance of winning legislative seats. REUTERS

THE WORD

– Dorothy Robinson will return on January 21.

Getting to the bottom of Jodie Foster's Golden Globes speech

Jodie Foster, who received the Cecil B. Demille Award for her 47-year-long career in Hollywood, offered an acceptance speech that left audiences and critics baffled, outraged and inspired in equal measure. Foster addressed her sexuality more openly than she ever has — without actually saying she's a lesbian — while also taking the press to task for continuing to bring up the issue. "I already did my coming out about a thousand years ago in the Stone Age," Foster said. "If you had been a public figure from the time that you were a toddler, you might value privacy."

So what did the 6.5-minute ramble actually mean? We set out to decode it:

GETTY IMAGES

"I guess I have a sudden urge to say something that I've never really been able to air in public. So, a declaration that I'm a little nervous about but maybe not quite as nervous as my publicist right now, huh Jennifer? But I'm just going to put it out there, right? Loud and proud, right? So I'm going to need your support on this. I am single. Yes I am, I am single. No, I'm kidding, but I'm not really kidding."

TRANSLATION: I recognize your hunger for a big confessional moment from me, and for that I am going to mess with you.

"Now I'm told, apparently that every celebrity is expected to honor the details of their private life with a press conference, a fragrance and a prime-time reality show. You know, you guys might be surprised, but I am not Honey Boo Boo Child. No, I'm sorry, that's just not me. It never was and it never will be."

TRANSLATION: I am going to equate being upfront about your sexuality with the more tasteless and tacky aspects of reality TV culture, no matter how damaging it may be for young gays and lesbians to see a successful public figure refuse to say the word "lesbian."

"There is no way I could ever stand here without acknowledging one of the deepest loves of my life, my heroic co-parent, my ex-partner in love but righteous soul sister in life, my confessor, ski buddy, consigliere, most beloved BFF of 20 years, Cydney Bernard. Thank you, Cyd. I am so proud of our modern family."

TRANSLATION: I was in a long-term relationship with a woman, and we have two children together. This is not necessarily news, but it's the first time I've acknowledged her in front of television cameras.

"This feels like the end of one era and the beginning of something else. Scary and exciting and now what? Well, I may never be up on this stage again, on any stage for that matter."

TRANSLATION: It's difficult not to feel you're in some moment of transition when an organization gives you a lifetime achievement award, even if you're only 50 years old.

In summation: Jodie Foster doesn't need to come out of the closet because she already is out of the closet even if she never officially came out of the closet. And she's not retiring from Hollywood, despite how the end of her speech was initially interpreted. "I could never stop acting," Foster told reporters backstage. "You'd have to drag me behind a team of horses. I'd like to be directing tomorrow."

Talking points

Moore moving on

Demi Moore's fledging romance with 31-year-old restaurateur Harry Morton is reportedly heating up, according to E! News. "They have been trying to keep it a secret," a source says. "It's not a serious thing, but it may develop into something. They have a lot of fun together and have been meeting in secret places in New York and Los Angeles." The pair were recently spotted dining out in Beverly Hills and have reportedly spent several nights together at Moore's home. Morton famously dated Lindsay Lohan in 2006 and also has been linked to Jennifer Aniston.

Jennifer Lawrence back on the market

Jennifer Lawrence is now a Golden Globe-winning actress, but she'll be celebrating solo, as Lawrence and "X-Men: First Class" co-star Nicholas Hoult have reportedly called it quits, according to Us Weekly. The young stars met on the set of the superhero film and dated for two years. The split comes as a surprise, as Lawrence was singing Hoult's praises recently to Elle magazine. "He is honestly my best friend, and hopefully I'm his best friend, too," she told the magazine. "He's my favorite person to be around and he makes me laugh harder than anybody."

▶ Taylor Swift

Taylor Swift seeking musical revenge?

Consider this fair warning, Harry Styles. In the wake of her split from the One Direction member, Taylor Swift posted this ominous message to her Twitter account: "Back in the studio. Uh oh..." Swift has made a career of penning autobiographical tunes of heartbreak, often embarrassing ex-boyfriends like John Mayer and Jake Gyllenhaal. A Styles number may be a doozy, as Swift was reportedly left heartbroken by the Brit, who dumped her during a Caribbean vacation because he said she's "asexual and wouldn't put out," a source tells Radar Online.

NBC boss on the future of 'Community'

At the Television Critics Association press tour, Robert Greenblatt answers questions on the network's comedies

▶ Joel McHale and Yvette Nicole Brown star in "Community," which begins its 13-episode fourth season on Feb. 7.

When we spoke with actor Rob Corddry recently, we asked if he'd be popping up again as a former legal pal of Jeff Winger (Joel McHale) on NBC's "Community." His response: "Isn't that show done?" It's a question a lot of people have been asking, especially given recent developments for the beleaguered comedy. First, the show's creator, Dan Harmon, left last spring in a less-than-amicable split with the network. Then the show was renewed for an abbreviated 13-episode fourth season that's not premiering until Feb. 7. Then last month, Chevy Chase announced he'd be departing at the end of the season.

While NBC has moved "Community" back to its original time slot of Thursday at 8 p.m., the future doesn't necessarily look bright for the comedy. "If it did what it has been doing in the past, I'd be happy," NBC Entertainment Chairman Robert Greenblatt says of the show's ratings. "Does that automatically mean it gets renewed? It's hard to be definitive on any front. But if it does significantly worse than it's been doing, that would be worrisome."

"If it did what it has been doing in the past, I'd be happy."
GREENBLATT, ON 'COMMUNITY'

But shows like "Community" — shot on sets using single cameras — might not be part of NBC's comedy plans going forward. Other single-cam shows "The Office" and "30 Rock" are ending this year, while the network has two more traditional multi-camera sitcoms, "Whitney" and "Guys with Kids." In addition, the network is in the process of remaking "Up All Night," starring Will Arnett, Christina Applegate and Maya Rudolph, as a multi-cam show.

"I would love to do more multi-cam comedies," Greenblatt says, using former multi-cam hits like "Seinfeld" and "Friends" as a reference. "It's harder to find great writers who can elevate that form. ... It's one of the reasons why I would love 'Up All Night' to work, because it would have three of the classiest actors doing multi-cam, and that would be a good step forward."

Trends in book publishing from Jason Boog, editor of the publishing industry blog GalleyCat ◆ High hopes for amateur writers in 2013

HOW AND WHAT WE'LL BE READING IN 2013

▶ There's a brand new literary world out there in 2013.

New YEAR, New VISION, New YOU!

NEW IN THE NEW YEAR

As the editor of GalleyCat, the go-to online source for all book news, Jason Boog lives and breathes the publishing industry. He was kind enough to share what and how you'll be reading in 2013 (besides your daily Metro, of course).

The self-publishing revolution/evolution continues

"There's still this revolution away from mainstream publishers — but because self-publishing is so popular, it's evolving," says Boog, noting that with so many people entering the self-publishing marketplace at once, it's difficult to get discovered. "Writers have to be very careful," he cautions. "It's even easier to drop into obscurity and not be heard from again." Because writers need help standing out, a new industry is cropping up to market them. "We see a lot of people selling services, 'How to market your book' and things like that. You can see companies charging anywhere from $2,000 to $25,000 for marketing packages. As an aspiring writer, you have to be careful and make sure you stay within your budget."

COY GUTIERREZ

▶ Jason Boog

Big publishing houses are working with small-time writers

"Publishers are seeing what's going on with self-published writers," he notes. "They're tapping into this new class of amateur writers who are really churning out a lot of material right now." Boog points to the "Fifty Shades of Grey" phenomenon. "E.L. James was a very successful self-published writer; she sold hundreds of thousands of copies on her own. But when she had the additional platform from her mainstream publisher, it helped her amplify her reach to that insane level we saw her hit."

A new genre emerges

The blog that Boog edits, GalleyCat, started compiling self-publishing best-seller lists. The genres that always top their lists? Romance and erotica. But Boog says that thrillers and a new genre called New Adult are the industry's hot upstarts. "New Adult books are positioned in-between adult fiction readers and Young Adult readers," he says. "New Adult tells the stories of people who are entering adulthood, who have just left their teenage years and are still struggling to become adults. This is going to become very popular."

More consolidation

"In 2012, we saw Penguin and Random House merge; as long as that passes regulatory muster, we're going to see major, earthshaking changes in 2013," says Boog. "Layoffs always come with these changes and we're going to see a leaner, more compact publishing industry." Boog says digital books are the major player behind this shift. "With e-books, you just don't make the same profit that you would on a hardcover book. Publishers are facing a lot of challenges right now with pricing and making a profit."

TOP RESOLUTIONS FOR EVERY MOM AND DAD

We ask two parenting experts — Stacy DeBroff, author of 'The Mom Book' and Gregory W. Slayton, who wrote 'Be a Better Dad Today' — to offer up their tips

For dads

Spend more time together

From the Honorable Gregory W. Slayton, parent expert, former U.S. ambassador and author of "Be A Better Dad Today: Ten Tools Every Father Needs"

▶ The Honorable Gregory W. Slayton

Commit to have dinner at least twice a week: It's not difficult, and statistically it's proven to be very important. Even if you're a divorced or single dad, you need to make sure you sit down and really have dinner with your children. Don't look at your phone, don't read the paper. Talk. And do it twice a week.

Do something fun with your family at least once a week: In addition to dinner, be sure to do something else. Go to a park, go fishing, go to a museum or go on a bike ride. Doing fun things with your kids is important and contributes to their well-being and sense of self-esteem. It's vital to you and your children and has the bonus of being enjoyable!

Learn more about fatherhood: Fatherhood is one of the least understood roles that we have as men today. There are thousands of books out there about being a better businessman and self-help books by the gazillion. But when it comes to fatherhood, the most important role as any, there are very few books out there. That's why I wrote mine; I didn't have a father when I was growing up and didn't have any guidance. Commit to learning more about fatherhood and improving your growth as a parent, because ultimately there is no job more fun or more important.

For moms

From Stacy DeBroff, founder and CEO of Mom Central, Inc., a company devoted to providing pragmatic tips and advice to strengthen and simplify the lives of busy families, and author of "The Mom Book"

Make time to replenish your energy: Between post-holiday exhaustion, the winter blues and the normal frenetic pace of parenting, moms often find their energy depleted at the start of a new year. Make 2013 the year you carve out time to take care of yourself, whether you kick-start your long-dormant book club, sign up for an exercise class or explore your inner creativity with a new artistic endeavor like photography or ceramics. Most importantly, resolve to keep these efforts up as the year progresses.

Help kids understand that electronics aren't a constitutional right: With kids spending hours each day online and texting at every opportunity, they live much of their lives in digital rec rooms. This year, remember that even digital natives need limits, so set sound guidelines with them. Establish timing parameters on when they can and can't go online, keep computers only in public spaces like the kitchen or family room and make sure kids share social media passwords with mom and dad.

Stay true to yourself: While moms typically develop their own parenting beliefs and style over the years, it remains a challenge to stay true to these principles when you discover that other parents have a very different approach. Even if you learn — or your kids tell you — that other moms buy laptops for kids once they start fifth grade or let them stay home alone, stand tall within yourself and parent according to what you believe.

You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make it create more jobs

All of these letter writers who parrot "supply-side" and "job creator" economics, which only help the rich get richer,

Quoted

"In tight economic times, I am more likely to buy another Picasso etching and Ming vase than invest in an iffy United States factory. Now that's supply-side patriotism!" ANGELO are subscribing to a century-old failed idea.

I recall being at a lecture in the 1980s where noted economist and thinker John Kenneth Galbraith said that "trickle-down economics" (first articulated in the 1890s) was, at best, like a few sparrows benefitting from the occasional oat falling from the horse's feedbag. After the talk, he was less dainty and said it is more like "a few oats that pass through the horse."
F. MICHAEL ANGELO, VIA E-MAIL

Forget about your rights — let's make society safer

America is currently not in a civil war. These so-called "assault rifles" should be sold only to the military organizations and/or police forces who battle thugs and hardened criminals. Civilians should not be allowed to buy these kind of assault weapons or any high-caliber weapons because they are not facing terrorists. They are not engaged in war! Period! Why can't soft-hearted politicians and greedy traders agree on that? Forget about rights and constitutional amendments! Just deal with the issue of banning high-caliber weapon sales to civilians who have no business owning such!

Man's best friend comes through for us — again

It is with a great amount of sadness that I write about this accident on my block. On Friday at 6:40 p.m., a man and his dog were hit by a RAV 4.

Well, I knew this man as Joe and his dog Sandy for about six years, although I never knew his last name. Joe's dog, a golden Lab retriever, was killed — and Joe, who is 87, suffered two broken legs and a broken pelvis and was sent to Long Island Jewish Medical Center that night. I would talk to him as I walked my Jack Russell terrier. I found Joe very friendly and his dog Sandy as well.

He would tell me that he served in WWII and was a tailor. He now has lost his best pal and meanwhile he lost his wife of many years a few months ago. I feel a man and his dog have a very important bond that cannot be separated. I feel that rainy night, Sandy may have saved his life because there was such a bond between the two of them. I hope Joe recovers and my prayers go out to him and his family at this sad time.

Horoscope

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. You seem to be better equipped to handle mental assignments than to do anything physical. Take care of the brainwork, and let others do the heavy lifting.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Although you'll have good earning abilities, conversely you could also have strong urges to spend. Don't allow the latter to run the show and put you in debt.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. You could be far more fortunate than usual working on endeavors or enterprises that you personally initiate and/or manage. If there is something you're anxious to get rolling, don't wait on others.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Developments taking place behind the scenes of which you'll be unaware are likely to have a constructive effect upon your material well-being. Soon all will become clear to you.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. You'll get a desired opportunity to strengthen a troubling relationship that has meant a lot to you. Make the most of it.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Once your ambitions are aroused, there's no stopping you — as events are likely to prove. In fact, you're capable of accomplishing what even you thought to be impossible.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. If you're a keen observer and a good student, you're likely to learn something through an experience that you'll be able to put to use down the line.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Be alert for an unusual opportunity to participate in something exciting that's originated by another. Getting involved will not only be stimulating, but will prove to be very rewarding as well.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. In an endeavor that mutually affects you and your special someone, don't make a move without discussing it with your partner, who might have some good ideas on how to handle it.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Regardless of what is asked of you, perform to the best of your abilities. Getting things right and doing them well will provide you with gratification.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Even if you have difficulties in managing certain jobs assigned to you, do the very best work that you can. You'll be better able to cope with things knowing that you tried your best.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. It does not matter how busy you are or how many projects you start, what really counts is how much you complete. If you're smart, you'll be mindful of your limitations. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

WHERE TO TRAVEL IN 2013

Lonely Planet's US travel editor Robert Reid is all over the map with emerging and up-and-coming destinations Plus, a fresh look at perennial favorites that are prime for visiting this year

▶ The Northern Lights are one of Lonely Planet's picks for where to go in 2013.

THINKSTOCK

NEW IN THE NEW YEAR

Fairbanks, Ala.

"If you haven't seen the Northern Lights, get to Fairbanks this year," Reid commands. "2013 marks the end of a fiery-year cycle, when sunspots are particularly bright, making for a big sky show for locals and visitors during 240 nights next year," he says. "You won't be able to see them like this again for a long, long time."

Dorothy Robinson
dorothy.robinson@metro.us

Eastern Sierras, Calif.

Road-trip time! Reid points to this "most underrated scenic drive" as a must in 2013. "If you keep going past Yosemite, on the scenic U.S. Route 395 you'll hit all of these bizarre little tourist destinations, from abandoned gold rush towns to Mono Lake, which looks like something out of a dinosaur movie." Other attractions include Devils Postpile National monument and hot springs. "You're not going to find these things elsewhere, so if you want to get away from the crowds this is where to go."

Louisville, Ky.

Reid says Louisville is "No. 1 with an exclamation point" for a must-see in 2013. "They are really reinventing themselves," he notes. "It's almost the new Portland." High praise, right? Reid says must-hits are their Bourbon Trail and New Louisville, which features converted warehouses used as local breweries, antique shops and the city's coolest restaurants. The first weekend in May, the Kentucky Derby has everyone raising their mint juleps. "Go for an extended weekend," advises Reid. "You'll be surprised by what you'll find."

Ecuador

This the Lonely Planet's top country in all of the Americas this year, says Reid. "People just think of the Galapagos when they think of Ecuador, but the country is really growing as an attraction." Visitors can see the Andes, the Amazon and the Pacific Ocean beaches in a compact area. There's a new airport opening in their "underrated" capital and a train to the beaches. "Plus it's surrounded by volcanoes. You can go to these volcanic national parks and ride horses. I can't even describe how beautiful it is."

Slovenia

"A less expensive way to experience Europe is through Slovenia," says Reid. "A lot of people go to Venice, but three hours from Venice is Slovenia, which is a great destination in its own right. There's great hiking, Venetian Gothic towns with fresh seafood and mansions converted into hostels with nice people and beautiful mountains." Reid says it's not dirt cheap, but if "you're looking for a little bit of Europe without a lot of cash, you should tack on Slovenia to your European vacation," he says. "It very well may be the next big thing."

Bay State College

Bay State College

When schools say they offer student support, what do they mean?

It could mean a lot of different things. At Bay State College it means we understand that going back to school is a big decision. And, it means we understand your concerns about succeeding at the college level. That's why, regardless of how you see yourself doing in college, we see an opportunity to help you realize your potential with a community of support.

What else does it mean? It means that admissions counselors can show off our campus, answer your questions and guide you through our selection process-even before you apply. It means helping 95 percent of this year's freshman class receive grants or scholarships that don't have to be repaid. It means personal success coordinators and a closely-knit student body that can help make America's biggest college town feel a little more like home.

In the classroom, it means a wide variety of Associates and Bachelor's degree programs in such in-demand fields as healthcare, business, fashion, criminal justice and more. No matter which program you choose, it means learning in small classes from accessible professors with real-world experience in their field. To fit your schedule, it means making classes available at night or online.

As you advance toward your degree, it means having a personal career advancement team. It means helping you write cover letters and resumes, creating mock job interviews and using social media to help you get noticed. It means internships at some of Boston's best companies and organizations to build working relationships with people that can help you find a full-time position doing what you love.

In the end, what does it all mean? It means that at Bay State College, we care as much about your comfort as we do your success. It means we're committed to providing you unmatched student support throughout your college journey. It means that going back to school doesn't mean going it alone.

In short, it means Bay State is the right choice for you.

Make This Your Year to Shine

There's no better time than the beginning of the year to take on new challenges. If furthering your education is the promise you've made to yourself, you'll find an education that fits at the College of Advancing and Professional Studies (CAPS) at UMass Boston.

With courses offered on campus, online and off site, you can enroll in degree programs, pursue undergraduate and graduate certificates or take a course for the joy of learning.

UMASS BOSTON

Degree Programs

Discover the power of your mind in the online Master of Arts program in Critical and Creative Thinking. Here you will be taught to confront ambiguous and complex problems, then reflect on them and bring insights to the surface. You'll learn the process of placing ideas and practices in tension with alternatives, and how to scrutinize and evaluate the assumptions, reasoning, and evidence that underlie decision-making and problem solving.

If your goal is to position yourself as an education leader, then investigate the world of Instructional Design. The Master of Education program is ideal for career professionals engaged in the education, training and development of adult learners in the work place.

Explore a Certificate Program

Certificate programs are fast-becoming the popular choice for adult learners. At CAPS you can earn a certificate on campus, online or in a blended program and reach your education goals while working full time.

Undergraduate Certificates

If you're looking to enter or advance in a growing field, explore gerontology courses either on-campus or online. Or, if you are bilingual, put your skills to work by enrolling in the popular online certificate in Spanish/English translation.

Graduate Certificates

On the graduate level, you can confront the challenges of worldwide populations impacted by disasters through a certificate program in Global Post Disaster Studies.

If you want to be in the company of women leaders, check out the 18-credit certificate program in Women's Leadership in a Global Perspective. The six interconnected courses will provide CAPS students with a comprehensive understanding of the development of women's leadership around the world. Since the certificate is offered entirely online, our students can study from anywhere so you'll be interacting with women from a variety of countries.

You can also sign up for an online certificate program in Instructional Technology Design, where you'll confront the increasing challenges created by the high technology training needs of academic, corporate, and public educators.

In the field of Applied Behavior Analysis, a five-course Applied Behavioral Analysis for Special Populations Certificate will meet the coursework requirement to sit for the national Certification Board licensing examination.

Non-credit Certificate Programs

An innovative and collaborative non-credit certificate could lead you down a new path in Emergency Management. The program combines the expertise and resources of the DelValle Institute for Emergency Preparedness with the academic programs in post-disaster reconstruction at UMass Boston.

Enhance Your Professional Development

To increase your skills or advance your career without pursuing academic credit, that can be accomplished through the College of Advancing and Professional Studies Corporate and Professional Development offerings. An online Web Design course or "Grant Writing, from A to Z" could be the one to open doors.

The choices are many - and the choices are Yours. No matter your goals, your schedule or your aspirations, the College of Advancing and Professional Studies has the Education that Fits. Sign up today. Classes begin February 4.CAPS.umb.edu/metro

Social Work: A Passionate Commitment to Change

The Simmons College School of Social Work's nationally acclaimed Master of Social Work (M.S.W.) program is recognized for providing exceptional preparation in clinical social work—direct practice with individuals, families, groups, and organizations.

Simmons College School of Social Work prepares its graduate students for one of today's fastest-growing professions. Simmons social workers are in demand because of the program's practical focus and strong clinical foundation. At Simmons, students learn to examine clinical challenges from an evidence based practice perspective. This perspective is grounded in the context of theory, social policy and a psycho-social approach to work with clients.

"I am a more "balanced" practitioner now that I have the theory (Attachment and Neurobiology, and Social Work Practice were my favorite classes) and clinical skills behind my natural desire for service. Simmons took my experience to another level," said Victor Ortiz, a 2010 Simmons' graduate who works as an Intervention and Treatment Support Director Mass Council on Compulsive Gambling. "Simmons was able to meet me where I was at and really engage me. I graduated a better professional and a better individual," he said.

Small classes led by faculty who are distinguished clinicians, consultants, educators, researchers, and community leaders make the Simmons experience rigorous, personal, and practical. Teaching at Simmons are Fulbright and Hartford scholars, two past presidents of the Massachusetts chapter of the National Association of Social Workers, and one past national NASW president. Faculty research and scholarly interests span a broad array of issues: domestic violence, health care disparities, trauma, HIV/AIDS, child welfare, social work leadership, gerontology, evidence-based practice, ethics, genetics and immigration.

The M.S.W. degree prepares students for professional work in a range of settings, including health care, schools, community agencies, as well as private practice. "I had an incredible experience at Simmons...the education and mentoring I received helped me to develop my social work identity." said Cecily Donegan a 2009 Simmons' graduate and a clinical social worker at Boston's Children's Hospital emergency department.

Simmons is highly regarded for its approach to fieldwork, which allows in-depth work with clients and agencies. In the classroom, as well as through field placements, Simmons emphasizes advanced clinical practice skills as well as client advocacy and social justice.

Students may concentrate in one of four areas of clinical specialization: adult mental health and substance abuse, health and aging, children and families and trauma and interpersonal violence. Student may also specialize by enrolling in the M.S.W. Urban Leadership Certificate Program which prepares students for leadership roles in agencies and community organizations. Students also have the option to apply in for the dual M.S.W./MBA degree or the coordinated degree in social work and public health.

"Our goal is to provide students with not only the education and clinical training they need to be good social workers, but also with the practical understanding of organizations and the cultural realities of their clients," said Professor Michael Melendez, Director of the M.S.W. program.

Simmons is committed to honoring an "educational contract" that places students' needs first by helping you build a successful career, lead a meaningful life, realize a powerful return on your educational investment—and make a difference in the world. It's what makes Simmons so different and, we hope, so attractive to you.

Founded more than 100 years ago with a social justice mission at its core, Simmons was the first college in the U.S. to offer training for social workers and the School of Social Work helped to pioneer education for clinical social workers and managed care practice.

Take the Next Step Toward a Rewarding Career

LESLEY UNIVERSITY

In today's challenging job market, it is important to develop the skills and confidence that you will need as you pursue a new career or an advanced position in your current field. Lesley University continues to be a top choice for those seeking to become leaders in education, the arts, counseling, expressive therapies, or intercultural relations.

Lesley University offers undergraduate and graduate programs designed to empower graduates to enact positive change—in both their professional careers and the world around them. Lesley's experiential programs meet the flexible scheduling needs of adult learners, with classes on and off-campus, online, and on the weekends.

Graduate Degrees: Arts and Social Sciences

The Graduate School of Arts and Social Sciences offers unique graduate programs in Counseling and Psychology, Creative Writing, Expressive Therapies, and Intercultural Relations. Our advanced degree programs emphasize experiential learning and close collaboration between you and the people who are making an impact in your field of interest.

If traditional degree programs do not accommodate your particular interests, the Self-Designed Master's Degree Program will enable you to design your own degree based on cross-disciplinary interests. Students who elect to self-design a degree may now choose to specialize in Mindfulness Studies, taking courses to understand both the basic principles of mindfulness and its effective application in the field.

Graduate Degrees: Art Institute of Boston

The Art Institute of Boston offers graduate programs in Photography and Visual Arts. The MFA in Photography is an on-campus program that emphasizes craft and concept-driven photography. The MFA in Visual Arts is a low-residency, interdisciplinary program that encourages students to explore the integration of a range of visual arts media.

Graduate Degrees: Education

Lesley's School of Education is marked by its commitment to education reform, action research, and a philosophy of providing lifelong learning for educators. Our graduate programs enable students to juggle the demands of career and family through on-campus courses in Cambridge and off-campus courses delivered at sites in Massachusetts through a one-weekend-per-month format. Several Master's programs are offered entirely online, including Science in Education, Technology in Education, and Mathematics Education (K-8).

Bachelor's Degree Completion for Adult Learners

Lesley's Center for the Adult Learner offers Bachelor's degree programs for adults in need of flexible learning options. The Center was created to support students, many of whom are juggling work and family responsibilities, as they work to achieve their professional goals. Students benefit from degree planning assistance, personalized attention through meetings with an academic advisor, and access to Lesley's high-quality course offerings. Credit for prior learning can be awarded for on-the-job training and previous work experience.

NEW ENGLAND COLLEGE OF BUSINESS AND FINANCE

FAST-PACED CHANGES IN THE MARKETPLACE REQUIRE SPECIALIZED EDUCATION

In an increasingly connected and globalized business world, it's more important than ever for professionals of all levels to have a comprehensive education and strong business knowledge.

Online marketing has become an integral part of any strategic marketing initiative. Human resource management functions are more specialized. Healthcare management now requires stronger operations and business skills, and doing business internationally is now available to even the smallest companies.

Four new programs help educate business professionals

New England College of Business and Finance (NECB) has recently introduced four new degree programs to meet the rapidly-changing personnel needs of business and financial organizations. NECB, an online institution designed for working adults seeking career advancement, provides its students with the theoretical and practical knowledge they need for jobs in career fields which are in high demand and expected to continue to grow.

Master of Healthcare Management

The Master of Healthcare Management (MHM) is NECB's latest post-graduate degree program and was designed by academic and industry experts in response to job growth projections by the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS). The healthcare management field is expected to grow 22 percent by 2020.

The MHM program is designed for individuals who are interested in advancing to healthcare management positions in critical business disciplines such as human resources, finance, accounting, marketing, information systems and strategy. Graduates will be prepared to pursue careers in the for-profit and nonprofit healthcare industries across sectors such as healthcare delivery, pharmaceutical, biotechnology, medical devices, healthcare services and insurance.

Certificate of Advanced Graduate Study in Human Resource Management

With the BLS predicting that the human resource management field will experience a 13 percent increase in the number of jobs available by 2020, NECB developed the Certificate of Advanced Graduate Study in Human Resource Management. This program is intended for business professionals who already have three to five years of progressive management experience and a graduate degree. Its curriculum is appropriate for those who want to shift their career path into human resources or need advanced skills that higher-level HRM management positions require.

Two bachelor's degree programs are also new at NECB: the Bachelor of Science in Digital Marketing and the Bachelor of Science in International Business.

Bachelor of Science in Digital Marketing

The Digital Marketing bachelor's degree is consistent with NECB's mission of providing high quality curriculum with a focus on educating competent and skilled business professionals. In addition to general business administration practices, research skills and change management, the program curriculum offers in-depth coursework in digital marketing, web development, consumer behavior, web design, advertising and more. BLS projections indicate that careers in the advertising, promotions and marketing management fields will increase by 14 percent by 2020.

Bachelor of Science in International Business

Finally, the Bachelor of Science in International Business is designed for those interested in careers that require navigating a competitive global environment. This could occur within a multinational corporation, a company looking to expand internationally or a governmental organization that deals with international regulatory issues.

These online bachelor's degree programs are designed for working adults who want to apply their education toward their existing career track or prepare for entry-level jobs in either digital marketing or international business.

With the addition of these new in-demand programs, NECB looks forward to continuing its 100-year tradition of educating the country's current and future business leaders.

Note: Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) statistics for projected job growth can be found at http://www.bls.gov/ooh by searching by occupation. Smith Leadership Academy CPS receives recognition and Commendation from Gov. Deval Patrick

Smith Leadership Academy Charter Public School is a 6th-8th grade middle school that provides students with standards-based instruction and character development intended to prepare them for success in high school and beyond. SLA offers a longer school day and year, small class size and individualized instruction based on frequent assessment. In 2012, the school was recognized as 1 of 7 charter schools in Massachusetts to achieve commendation from Governor Deval Patrick as a Performance Level 1 school. This recognition is based on high progress in achievement, as well as closing the achievement gap.

The Academy helps students form habits of mind and character based on the school's core values. Although, many students enter the school with skill deficits, the school provides instruction proportionate to their needs. As part of the school's community service program, students have traveled to Africa since 2007 and participated in the Making Strides Against Breast Cancer Walk and the Walk For Lupus Now. Additionally, students have supported City Life/ Vida Urbana in their fight against foreclosure. SLA has a college preparatory curriculum that prepares students for admission into distinctive private, charter, exam and METCO programs for high school. Smith Leadership Academy proudly maintains a 100% acceptance rate of graduates being accepted into distinctive secondary education programs.

Workshops and full-time programs in locksmithing, jewelry making, preservation carpentry, carpentry, violin making, bookbinding, piano technology and furniture making. Monthly information sessions.

NORTH BENNET ST. SCHOOL

DO WHAT YOU LOVE IN 2013

Locksmiths, jewelers, carpenters, piano tuners, bookbinders, preservation carpenters, furniture makers and violin makers trained at North Bennet Street School (NBSS) in Boston have one thing in common. They have jobs that they love.

Trained professionals with superior hand skills enjoy careers that are rewarding and engaging. Fixing an antique wedding band, helping a frantic homeowner who lost his keys, tuning the family piano or repairing a window in a Victorian triple-decker are jobs that require skilled and trusted professionals.

Emily Scott, a graduate of the jewelry making and repair program and now owner of a successful jewelry business, says "The most valuable aspect of the NBSS program was the intense, hands-on style of teaching. I wanted a skill-based career that produced tangible results and NBSS helped me achieve my goal."

Working full-time as a piano technician is fulfilling work for NBSS graduate Andy Reach. He reports that the NBSS program "provided exactly what was advertised -- skills and experience that could be directly applied to a piano-technology career – launching me on the fast track to attaining registered piano-technician status, which helped ensure a successful job search."

"If you like working with your hands, solving puzzles, working independently and helping people, you have the skills needed to be a locksmith" says Dave Troiano, head of the locksmithing program.

Visit www.nbss.edu to learn more about the school's eight full-time programs, accredited by the Accrediting Commission of Career Schools and Colleges, sign up for a monthly information sessions or start an application.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY

Metro's NBA power rankings | by Jimmy Toscano

1 THUNDER

GETTY IMAGES

THUNDER (29-8)
The true sign of a great team is when they can pull out the ugly wins. An 87-83 win over the Trail Blazers on Sunday certainly qualifies. This Oklahoma City team is proving why it captured the Western Conference crown last season and why they're favorites to return to the NBA Finals this year.

CLIPPERS (28-9)
L.A.'s loss to the Magic marked the first time since 2006 that a team ended a 10-plus-game losing streak by defeating the team with the best record in the NBA entering that day. The Clips are allowed a stinker once in a while (wow, times have changed).

SPURS (29-11)
Tough stretch of games this week for the Spurs as they host Memphis and Golden State then hit the road to Atlanta. Their 12-game home winning streak is on the line. Manu Ginobili (strained hamstring) won't be of any assistance, however.

HEAT (24-11)
Miami had lost three of its last five games going into Monday night's game in Utah. With teams like Indiana, Brooklyn and even the Celtics improving, they'll need to snap out of their mini-funk if they want to remain at the top of the Eastern Conference standings.

GRIZZLIES (24-11)
Memphis was rolling (wins over Golden State and San Antonio last week) before being blown out in Dallas by 21 points. They continue to be involved in trade rumors (Rudy Gay) despite owning one of the best records in the NBA.

NUGGETS (23-16)
It's all happening for the Nuggets. A slow start to this season had some people writing them off, but Denver has won five in a row and eight of 10 games.

WARRIORS (23-13)
The Warriors aren't quite living up to their name as of late, dropping a home game to Memphis and one on the road in Denver. Things don't get easier, as they host Miami on Wednesday.

KNICKS (24-13)
Since starting the year 18-5, the Knicks are just 6-8 in their last 14 games. They get a much-needed three-day break before Thursday's game in Detroit — then another three-day break.

NETS (22-15)
The Nets own the longest winning streak in the NBA, at six games. While most of the East has hit a rut, Brooklyn has found its stride again. An upcoming home-and-home series with Atlanta this week, followed by a trip across town to play the Knicks, will tell a lot.

PACERS (23-15)
Indy responded nicely after dropping one in Boston, winning the next four, including victories over the Heat and Knicks. But a hot Brooklyn team put them back in the loss column, and now they're looking up at them in the rankings.

HAWKS (21-15)
The door had been left open for the Hawks to move in on the Heat in the Southeast Division, but Atlanta found a way to lose to the two worst teams in the East.

CELTICS (19-17)
Don't look now, but the Celtics appear to be in one of those grooves they find after Christmas. Winners of five in a row going into Monday night, Boston is climbing quickly.

ROCKETS (21-17)
The Celtics snapped James Harden's 25-point streak at 14 games (he scored 24), but that's the least of Houston's problems. They also lost to the lowly New Orleans Hornets and Philadelphia 76ers.

BULLS (20-15)
After topping the Knicks at Madison Square Garden on Friday, the Bulls returned home the next day and were burned badly by the Suns, 97-81. It's that type of blowout loss that makes you think twice about including this team with the real contenders.

BLAZERS (20-17)
After a big win at home over the Heat, losses to the Warriors and Thunder have sent the Trail Blazers back down to earth. Nonetheless, Portland is playing good enough basketball to sneak into the postseason — a surprise to many.

BUCKS (19-17)
Nice win over the Bulls and the hot Raptors (that sounds weird), but they can't figure out Detroit, who they lost to for the second time in the last two weeks.

JAZZ (20-19)
Winners in five of their last seven games, the Jazz have floated around .500 all season and will most likely continue to. But do they have enough to make the playoffs out West?

RAPTORS (14-23)
The Raptors are 10-4 in their last 14 games. They lost a lot of close games earlier this season, so it's nice to see them coming out on top now. Getting back to .500, however, is quite a stretch.

PISTONS (14-24)
After Detroit's horrid start, it's a near miracle that they cracked the top 20. Then again, look at the teams behind them. The young twin towers of Greg Monroe (15.5 ppg) and Andre Drummond (1.6 blocks per game) are a pretty nice foundation to build on in Detroit.

T'WOLVES (16-18)
With Kevin Love out of action, this could be the highest we see Minnesota in the rankings for quite a while. They were predictably smacked around by San Antonio, 106-88, Sunday night, and the road won't get any friendlier.

In the news

Gronk update

Multiple outlets confirmed the report that Rob Gronkowski will miss the rest of the postseason due to an injury suffered early in Sunday's Patriots win over Houston.

In other Pats injury news, Danny Woodhead is expected to be available against the Ravens after injuring his thumb.

Patriots bring back another former coach in January

The Patriots are welcoming back an assistant coach from their past for a second straight postseason, as it was announced by head coach Bill Belichick on Monday that the team will re-introduce former wide receivers coach Brian Daboll to the coaching staff.

A year ago, New England caught some flak around the league by bringing back offensive coordinator Josh McDaniels just weeks after he had been on the staff of the St. Louis Rams.

Daboll is one of the more known branches of the Belichick coaching tree, having served as an offensive coordinator under Eric Mangini in Cleveland, under Tony Sparano in Miami and under Romeo Crennel in Kansas City this past season.

"Last year when I came back, I just really did anything they asked me to do," McDaniels said. "I was excited to do it. Anything you can do to help at this time of year is useful. Whether that's drawing practice cards or sitting in a meeting and having a few ideas on a certain situation in a game plan or anything like that during the course of a week, everything is so important. Every detail is so critical at this time of the year."

Trash talk out of Baltimore begins

Ravens special teams contributor Brendon Ayanbadejo apologized on Twitter yesterday less than 24 hours after tweeting trash about the Patriots.

"I made selfish comments on twitter last night ... for that I apologize."

Ayanbadejo made references to the 2007 Spygate scandal and the Patriots' "18-1" record from that season. He also called the current Patriots' hurry-up offense a "gimmick." CBS Sports reported many Patriots players were "furious" about the comments. MATT BURKE

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
MASSACHUSETTS DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION – HIGHWAY DIVISION
NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING
Project File No. 603514

A Design Public Hearing will be held by MassDOT to discuss the proposed Bridge Replacement, L-08-014, Whitney Street Over the Monoosnoc Brook project in Leominster, MA.

WHERE: Meeting Room
Leominster Public Library
30 West Street, Leominster, MA 01453
WHEN: January 22, 2012, @ 7:00 pm

PURPOSE: The purpose of this hearing is to provide the public with the opportunity to become fully acquainted with the proposed Bridge Replacement, L-08-014, Whitney Street over the Monoosnoc Brook project. All views and comments made at the hearing will be reviewed and considered to the maximum extent possible.

PROPOSAL: The proposed project consists of replacing the existing structure with a single span superstructure with a span length of approximately 73 feet. The proposed bridge shall have a curb-curb width of 32 feet and two 6.5 foot sidewalks. Bicycle accommodations consisting of usable shoulders have been provided in accordance with applicable design guides.

A secure right-of-way is necessary for this project. Acquisitions in fee and permanent or temporary easements may be required. The city of Leominster, Massachusetts is responsible for acquiring all needed rights in private or public lands. MassDOT's policy concerning land acquisitions will be discussed at this hearing.

Written views received by MassDOT subsequent to the date of this notice and up to five (5) days prior to the date of the hearing shall be displayed for public inspection and copying at the time and date listed above. Plans will be on display one-half hour before the hearing begins, with an engineer in attendance to answer questions regarding this project. A project handout will be made available on the MassDOT website listed below.

Written statements and other exhibits in place of, or in addition to, oral statements made at the Public Hearing regarding the proposed undertaking are to be submitted to Thomas F. Broderick, P.E., Chief Engineer, MassDOT, 10 Park Plaza, Boston, MA 02116, Attention.: Project Management, Project File No. 603514. Such submissions will also be accepted at the hearing. Mailed statements and exhibits intended for inclusion in the public hearing transcript must be postmarked within ten (10) business days of this Public Hearing. Project inquiries may be emailed to dot.feedback.highway@state.ma.us

This location is accessible to people with disabilities. MassDOT provides reasonable accommodations and/or language assistance free of charge upon request (including but not limited to interpreters in American Sign Language and languages other than English, open or closed captioning for videos, assistive listening devices and alternate material formats, such as audio tapes, Braille and large print), as available. For accommodation or language assistance, please contact MassDOT's Chief Diversity and Civil Rights Officer by phone (857-368-8580), fax (857-368-0602), TTD/TTY (857-368-0603) or by email (MassDOT.CivilRights@dot.state.ma.us). Requests should be made as soon as possible prior to the meeting, and for more difficult to arrange services including sign-language, CART or language translation or interpretation, requests should be made at least ten (10) business days before the meeting.

In case of inclement weather, hearing cancellation announcements will be posted on the internet at http://www.massdot.state.ma.us/Highway/
